THE OFFICIAL TOURNAMENT MAGAZINE FROM WIZARDS OF THE COAST

NUMBER 16

On Top of the World

The 1998 Magic World Championships will invade Seattle, Washington, this summer as national teams from over thirty-five countries travel to the Wizards of the Coast Game Center to decide the 1998 Magic World Champion and split a $250,000 purse.

National teams will join the best Pro Tour players in a five-day Magic marathon, during August 12–16. The event will feature a wide variety of formats—including Rath Cycle Constructed, Rath Cycle Booster Draft, and Standard—to establish the best all-around player in the world.

The winner will join the short list of Magic World Champions: 1997 Champion Jakub Slemr, 1996 Champion Tom Chanpheng, 1995 Champion Alexander Blumke, and 1994 Champion (and first-ever World Champion) Zak Dolan.

At last year's World Championships, Czech Republic's Slemr prevailed over 153 of the toughest competitors in the world. After five grueling days, he defeated Germany's Janosch Kühn 3–1 in the finals. Slemr will be back to defend his title, carrying with him an impressive string of high finishes on the Pro Tour circuit, including a quarterfinal finish in Los Angeles.

In addition to the 1998 Magic World Championships, Wizards of the Coast has scheduled a variety of spectacular events that include side tournaments, artist signings, gunslinging, charity events, and auctions. This is the one event you won't want to miss!

U.S. Regionals

Regionals Show the State of Standard

On Saturday, May 16, fifteen Regional Championships were held across the United States. Of the 3,093 people who participated, 108 earned invitations to the U.S. National Championships to be held at Origins, July 3–5.

Prior to the wave of tournaments, top players were quiet about their deck designs. Since there hadn't been a large Standard-format tournament since the Stronghold card set entered the environment, no one knew exactly what decks other players were constructing. Deck builders were forced to imagine the field they'd be facing and tune their decks accordingly.

Since those who had already qualified to play in the National Championships were barred from entry, many names new to the national scene appeared at the top, along with such Pro Tour regulars as Mid-Atlantic champion Mike Long, who won his tournament with a "Five-Color Blue" deck and long-time Pro Tour player Preston Poulter, who came in eighth place in Southern California.

The tournaments, ranging in size from Alaska's 35 people to the Midwest's 390-person turnout, typically presented a full day of Magic play: several rounds of Swiss pairings followed by eight-person, single-elimination rounds. For those who were eliminated or who didn't enter the Regional Championships, there were numerous side events featuring Sealed Deck, Booster Draft, and other Limited and Constructed formats.

By far the most popular deck across the country was "Sligh." Twenty-four people (including David Petersen, Pat Callahan, Derek Mallory, and Danyel James, champions of the Midwest, Southeast, Ohio Valley, and Alaska Regions, respectively) successfully relied on the deck's cheap creatures and direct damage to send them to the National Championships in July. Cursed Scroll and Fireblast were in nearly every deck of this type, while utility creatures like Goblin Vandal and Goblin Digging Team appeared in only some decks, depending on what the players expected to face.

White-weenie and black-weenie decks also did well with their hordes of small creatures, each carrying fifteen people to high finishes. In the Northeast, five of the Top 8 players were either playing white- or black-weenie decks, including champion Eric Phillipps and his black-weenie deck. The decks' reliability and speed tended to make up for the lack of versatility, and the many Wastelands were able to keep more baroque decks from dominating the field by destroying the five-color land (such as City of Brass or Undiscovered Paradise).

Once past Sligh, white-weenie, and black-weenie decks, the field was vastly scattered with many different five-color decks. Although they shared some characteristics (such as, unsurprisingly, land that could generate any color of mana), their focus varied madly: Mark Schick conquered Northern California and Steve Jarvis won the Mountain region with their "Five-Color Green" decks; Kris Lohman won the Hawaii region by reanimating creatures out of the graveyard with his "Peaches" deck; Steven Stadnicki in the Northwest and Sam Rapson in the Great Plains each won their respective regions with Silver creatures; and Jacob Chen, champion of the South, simply played with all the best cards of all the colors.

Some teams used the Regional Championships as an opportunity to try out new decks. Alan Comer's "Godzilla" deck, based around early reanimation of huge creatures, placed third, sixth, and ninth in Southern California, while Darwin Kastle's "Five-Color Kastle" deck took the Top 3 spots in New England, including Chris Manning, who ended the day in first place.

Because of the varying fields of competition, the success of a player's deck (and, of course, of the player playing the deck) depended somewhat on the region. At the Southern California Regional, played at the Queen Mary, five of the Top 8 decks relied heavily on black cards, led by Ariel Sas's black-weenie deck. At the Southwest Regional, two states over in New Mexico, the only heavily black deck in the Top 8 was played by champion Christa Stenger.

Decks became known by different names in different places. The Northeast's "Ritual Madness" deck is similar to "Suicide Black" in the Ohio Valley and "Balabon Black" in New England. Andrew Pacifico's "Five-Color Flagpole" (which he used to qualify for the Super Series Championship as well as to take fifth place in the Southeast Regional) is not entirely dissimilar to the "Five-Color Green" deck played halfway around the world in Hawaii.

The successful players from the Regional Championships will join the American Pro Tour player point leaders, a selection of players with high DCI ratings, and the returning U.S. National team: Kyle Bigos, Jeffrey Butz, Bob Maher, Jr., and defending U.S. National Champion Justin Gary. There will also be a series of Open qualifiers for the National Championships, to be held continuously immediately prior to the National Championships.

MAGIC CAUGHT IN THE ACT

What I like most about the Regional Championships is how they represent a cross-section of the Standard environment. The moment before the Exodus expansion joined the card pool, the Regionals decks were the ones to watch.

Regionals offer us a chance to see what kind of decks are successful across the country. They help monitor the pulse of the game, a pulse that is changing constantly. By the time this issue reaches your hands, the Exodus cards will have already been released, presumably changing the Standard environment already.

That, to me, is the beauty of the Standard environment. As the card pool shifts, different decks rise to the top only to be replaced by others. Deck archetypes stay, but their primary cards change. In order to perform consistently, players have to be willing to say good-bye to deck ideas if the current card pool doesn't support them; and they have to be able to recognize potential decks that could be constructed out of the newly released cards.

Some players try to make long-lasting decks, building with cards that will stay in the environment as long as possible (an all-Rath Cycle deck will be playable some time after the Mirage block has rotated out), only updating cards as the new sets enter the environment. Other players scour each new expansion for the seeds of revolutionary new decks. The most successful players, of course, have several decks at a time, considering deck A to be best tuned for May's Standard environment, but switching to deck B as soon as July brings Exodus into the pool.

Some players hang onto old sets until the last minute, believing there must be some card in the Mirage expansion that everyone else has overlooked. Incidentally, that's my favorite type of player. I'd be thrilled if someone created an absolute deadly deck the week before half of its cards rotated out of the environment.

This issue is dedicated to the U.S. Regionals and the players who performed well there. Sideboard #16 also highlights the DCI players' organization and its recent announcements regarding sanctioned tournaments. I look forward to August 12–16 and the Magic World Championships, and hope to see you there!

White-weenie variants were likely the most popular deck type in the 1998 U.S. Regionals. The deck's numbers were only rivaled by various "Five-Color Tradewind" designs. Although it qualified fifteen people, the white-weenie deck did not perform as well as expected considering the sheer number of them present. In fact, not a single player using a white-weenie deck won a Regional Championship.

White weenie does seem to be an attractive choice for the current metagame. It has sufficient speed and quality creatures to race against other aggressive decks. It has enchantment and artifact removal needed to beat "Prosperous Bloom" and other combo-oriented strategies. Finally, white weenie is in the best position to take advantage of Mox Diamond by combining it with Tithe. Mox Diamonds and the low casting cost of most spells allow the deck to splash colors easily for utility cards such as Incinerate, Man-o'-War, Firestorm, Diabolic Edict, and Mana Leak.

Preston Poulter's deck provides a good example of today's white-weenie strategy. It is more controlling than average and has a lot of mana denial. Of course, not everyone followed that route. Fred Foure went undefeated through the Swiss rounds of the Northeast Regional with a mono-white deck containing both Cursed Scroll and Empyrial Armor—an unorthodox choice that seemed to work out very well for Foure. Others typically included six to eight en-Kor creatures with Soltari Priest and Earthquake.

Ironically, the key cards in today's white-weenie decks are not the creatures: the utility and mana denial of Armageddon, Disenchant, Empyrial Armor, Cursed Scroll, and Firestorm tend to make or break the deck.

Made popular during the U.K. Regionals, this original design is similar in spirit to the "Five-Color Green" deck that emerged during last year's Regional competition. The "Countersliver" deck combines mana denial and control elements with fast, hard-to-remove creatures. Most of these decks included Muscle, Crystalline and Winged Slivers, with the occasional Hibernation Sliver thrown into the mix.

Most of the common removal spells target the creatures—popular exceptions being Wrath of God and Earthquake. This makes Crystalline Sliver the star of this deck. When "Countersliver" works well, almost no deck can deal with an opposing horde of 2/2 and 3/3 flying untargetable creatures.

Variations of the Countersliver deck qualified six people to the U.S. Nationals, of whom two (Steven Stadnicki of Seattle, WA, and Sam Rapson of Lincoln, NE) won their respective Regional titles.

Having dominated last year's U.S. Regionals, the "Five-Color Green" deck, along with its "Blue-Green Bounce" counterpart, was expected to make a big splash in this year's contests. Despite high numbers of players playing the deck, it didn't live up to expectations, qualifying only eight players total.

What made last year's deck so successful was its relatively secret nature and groundbreaking use of the Quirion Rangers/Birds of Paradise combo. Though this year's deck improved from its earlier incarnation thanks to the addition of Tradewind Rider, it lacked the surprise value necessary for it to succeed on a major scale. Most players playing opposing deck styles practiced extensively against the Five-Color Green and thus had many ways of dealing with its threats. Only the most highly customized versions of the Five-Color Green deck survived.

The two most-played variants at Regionals were the standard Five-Color Green and Blue-Green Tradewind Bounce decks. Though the decks shared many characteristics (Winter Orb, Mana-o'-War, Wall of Roots, Wall of Brambles, and Tradewind Rider lock), they differed greatly due to the Blue-Green's lack of three colors. Where the Five-Color Green deck had Terror, Incinerate, and Armageddon to control the board, the Blue-Green deck had Legacy's Allure, Propaganda, and more counterspells.

Since the release of the Stronghold card set, a debate has arisen about whether it's better to use the Wall of Roots or the Wall of Blossoms for early creature defense in the Five-Color Green and Blue-Green Bounce decks. While most players playing the five-color version agree that the Wall of Roots allows a faster recovery after an Armageddon, others contend the Wall of Blossoms' cantrip ability gives you land at a faster rate. As the Blue-Green deck lacked the Armageddon, most went with the Wall of Blossoms, or a combination of the two.

Though the Five-Color Green deck didn't dominate as it had the previous year, it did manage to bring home Regional Champions at the Mountain Regional (Steve Jarvis) and Northern California Regional (Mark Schick). In addition to Steve Jarvis's victory, the Mountain Regional was the only tournament where the deck managed to qualify more than one player (Eric Gonce). Other Five-Color Green players fighting their way out of these Regionals and qualifying for the U.S. Nationals included: Andrew Pacifico (Atlanta), Clayton Edwards (Columbus), Shane Cargilo (Los Angeles), Matthew Ranks (Boston), and Bob Allbright (Chicago).

Designed by 1997 Canadian Nationals Finalist and Level IV DCI Judge Mike Donais, "Five-Color Blue" first appeared soon after the release of the Tempest expansion and gained a lot of popularity after being updated to include Stronghold cards.

Slow and methodical, Five-Color Blue is a control deck in every sense of the word. Players using this deck do not concern themselves with winning quickly—they often simply wait to run their opponents out of cards. The deck concentrates on control with white, blue, and red removal and counterspells, as well as life-gaining abilities by way of Gerrard's Wisdom. The main strength of the Five-Color Blue deck is the absence of non-land permanents. Most opponents' removal spells become useless when facing this deck.

Although Five-Color Blue did not perform as well as others in the Regionals, it did allow three people to qualify, including Mid-Atlantic Champion Mike Long.

Back when the Magic game was in its infancy, Zak Dolan, the first Magic World Champion, gave some of the earliest deck-testing advice: there are two decks you always have to be ready for—the fast creature deck and mono-red burn. In the ever-changing world of Magic, these two test deck types have remained a constant. Players actively seek to eliminate these threats in pre-tournament practice. Until the "Sligh" deck was developed during the "black summer" of 1996, testing against creature and burn decks tended to be quite easy. Combining the strongest elements of both burn and early creature beatdown, Sligh has become the deck archetype favored by both Pro Tour–level players and beginners. Taking an amazing 24 of the 108 top spots (22 percent) at this year's U.S. Regionals, it's a sure bet the Sligh deck will continue to influence the game for years to come.

The modern Sligh deck has certain key cards which distinguish it from other burn/beatdown decks: Incinerate, Mogg Fanatic, Ball Lightning, Jackal Pup, Cursed Scroll, and Fireblast. Creatures often finding their way into many Sligh variants include Ironclaw Orc or Mogg Flunkies (rarely both), Firesling, Dwarven Miner, Goblin Vandal, Goblin Digging Team, and Suq'Ata Lancer. Combining strength and flexibility, red creatures allow for metagaming choices to take out the deck types most common in a player's region. Popular varieties of burn played in Sligh decks include Shock or Kindle (almost never both), Hammer of Bogardan, Thunderbolt, and Firestorm.

Players using Sligh decks made strong Regional appearances in Washington, D.C. (three Top 8 finishers), Salt Lake City (four Top 8 finishers), Atlanta (three Top 8 finishers), and Anchorage (both in the Top 2). At least one Sligh player qualified for Nationals in twelve of the fifteen Regionals, with Hawaii, New England, and Southern California the only regions to hold Sligh at bay. If this deck's Regionals showing is any indication of the decks to watch out for at the U.S. Nationals, it will have a significant impact on who walks away with the championship trophy.

TOP regionals decks

Suicide Black

Deck: "Black Weenie"
Player: Eric Phillipps
Region: Northeast
Finish: Champion

Creatures (26)
2 Barrow Ghoul
4 Black Knight
4 Dauthi Horror
4 Dauthi Slayer
4 Erg Raiders
4 Sarcomancy
4 Sewer Rat

Spells (15)
4 Bad Moon
2 Choking Sands
1 Cursed Scroll
4 Dark Ritual
4 Paralyze

Lands (19)
15 Swamp
4 Wasteland

SIDEBOARD
2 Barrow Ghoul
1 Choking Sand
2 Coercion
2 Forsaken Wastes
3 Gloom
2 Reckless Spite
3 Spinning Darkness

For the first time since early 1997, mono-black weenie is back as a viable and powerful deck archetype. Loaded with inexpensive weenie creatures, this deck has little disruption. It goes straight for the throat attempting to destroy opponents before they have a chance to set up their own strategy.

Named "Suicide Black," this deck offers no way of dealing with cards like Light of Day or Circle of Protection: Black. It can, however, outrun the deck that plays those cards by slowing them down with a bit of land destruction. Suicide Black is extremely light on mana and all of its cards can be cast for three or fewer mana. Paralyze is its removal spell of choice: for only one black mana it can deal with a greater range of creatures than Terror; the deck usually wins fast enough that keeping the creature tapped for a while is as good as destroying it.

Some versions of Suicide Black included Cursed Scroll for creature removal and late-game direct damage. Others added a single Kaervek's Spite to finish the game sooner. Perhaps the most important part of the deck, however, are the eight Shadow creatures capable of getting by the popular blockers such as Wall of Blossoms and Tradewind Rider. Bad Moon serves to speed up the "beatdown" as well as protect the smaller creatures from pingers like Firestinger and Mogg Fanatic. Some versions also included Unholy Strength to speed up the deck even further.

Suicide Black placed fifteen players in the quarterfinals around the country. Its impact was especially heavy in New York and Los Angeles, where three of the Top 8 finishers were playing this deck. Eric Phillipps (New York City) and Christa Stenger (Albuquerque) defeated the opposition to secure the number-one seats in their regions.

4 Pyroblast
1 Terror
2 Tranquil Domain

With four players playing Alan Comer's latest creation to an amazing 78-percent win percentage at the Southern California Regionals, he must be considered among the premier deck builders in competitive Magic play.

While daydreaming about the past and his Type 1.5 "Bazaar of Bagdad/Big Creature" deck, Comer decided it was high time to bring back the fun in the Magic game. Confiding this vision to longtime friend and Magic player Larry Janiec, Alan outlined his idea of the perfect Reanimator deck. Its engine, four Animate Deads, and four Necromancies allowed for a potential first-turn Hidden Horror/Verdant Force ("Godzilla") and other strong combos. After Janiec proved the deck's worth at one of the local tournaments, Comer, Janiec, Adam Vierya, and Brian Seldon decided they would play the deck at the upcoming Regionals.

Putting on a Magic performance rivaled only by the "Peaches/Kastle" deck's showing at the Boston Regionals, the Comer quartet qualified two players, with the other two narrowly missing the cut. At the end of the Swiss portion of the tournament, Janiec (6–1–1) and Seldon (7–0–1) had qualified for the U.S. Nationals, while Comer and Vierya barely missed with 6–2 records.

Peaches

Deck: "Peaches"
Player: Chris Manning
Region: New England
Finish: Champion

Creatures (24)
4 Birds of Paradise
3 Fallen Angel
3 Mako
3 Spike Feeder
3 Tradewind Rider
4 Wall of Blossoms
4 Wall of Roots

Spells (14)
3 Armageddon
3 Firestorm
4 Intuition
4 Living Death

Lands (23)
4 City of Brass
11 Forest
4 Gemstone Mine
2 Undiscovered Paradise

SIDEBOARD
3 Lobotomy
3 Man-o'-War
3 Pyroblast
3 Tranquil Domain
3 Uktabi Orangutan

During this year's U.S. Regionals, one of the more powerful Tempest Constructed decks made its way onto the Standard (Type II) scene via the "Peaches" or "Five-Color Kastle" deck. Featuring the Spike Feeder (or "Peaches") as a way of keeping ahead during the damage race and Living Death as a way of recycling spent creatures, the Peaches deck qualified eight people around the country, including three of the five who played it in the New England Regional.

Two variants of the deck proved to be the strongest of those played around the country. Darwin Kastle's design featured Firestorm, Armageddon, Maro, and Fallen Angel. The Armageddons allowed for a Tradewind Rider lock once creature superiority was gained, while the Fallen Angel allowed for its own creature removal prior to a large Living Death. Though Kastle didn't qualify with this deck, Chris Manning, Jeff Magid, and Michelle Bush did. Players using the Kastle variant won an amazing 76 percent of its games.

The other Peaches variant was the "Peaches and Stuff" deck designed in the Bay Area. Using Hermit Druid to set up massive Living Death advantage, Joe Ellis (Mountain Regional) and Carey Strock (Northern California Regional) qualified out of the four players using this deck.

Best of the Rest

"Prosperous Bloom"

Combo deck in every sense of the word, players using "Prosperous Bloom" decks attempt to win by casting a huge Drain Life, powered by the mana obtained while drawing and processing a lot of cards through Cadaverous Bloom. Although three people qualified playing the Bloom deck, its overall performance was certainly the greatest disappointment of the Regionals. Beforehand, many top players predicted Bloom to be the perfect metagame deck, so many of the better players used it. However, all those who did not play the deck heeded the warning and prepared heavily for it. As a result, most of those playing the deck in the Regionals were eliminated in early rounds.

"Blue Weenie"

Five players using blue-weenie decks qualified for the U.S. Nationals. The most popular blue-weenie variant was "The Fish," a merfolk deck with Lord of Atlantis, some countermagic, and Winter Orb for mana denial. Matt Linde and John Slaughter both made the Top 8 in Washington, D.C. playing the same Fish deck. Paul Ferker took second place in New York playing a far less orthodox blue-weenie deck. His deck included several undercosted flying creatures such as Spindrift Drake, Waterspout Djinn, and Cloud Elemental backed up with some countermagic and Nevinyrral's Disk.

"X-Color Black"

Four various "X-Color-Black" decks qualified players for the U.S. Nationals. They were very similar to multicolor white-weenie decks in that they relied upon the better control and removal spells from multiple colors backed up by the small, fast black creatures. The X-Color-Black deck performed best in the South Regional, qualifying Timothy Capps and Kirby Vardeman.

"Counterburn"

The classic red-blue control deck qualified two players to the U.S. Nationals. Players using this deck ran a lot of counterspells backed up with direct damage and usually won by way of Hammer of Bogardan recursion. Both qualified players included creatures this time: Andy Elovich used Wildfire Emissary and Rainbow Efreets while Peter Constantinidis used a single Shivan Dragon.

Extended Championships

Buehler Extends Winning Streak

Players entering the first annual North American Extended Championship were expecting the highest level of competition. Held at Andon Unlimited's East Coast Game Faire, the tournament attracted ninety-two competitors, including such great players as Erik Lauer, John Chinnock, Steven O'Mahoney-Schwartz, and the two leaders of the Pro Tour player point race, Jon Finkel and Randy Buehler.

The Extended format is most popular for its large pool of available cards. Many different deck types thrive in this environment. White-weenie variants proved to be the favorite type among the competitors, the predominant decks being classic white weenie, the "Alatar" deck (white weenie with some red for direct damage), and "PTJank" (white-red-blue weenie with cursed scroll). "Necro," "Sligh," and "Counter Post" variants were present in force as well.

One of the more interesting decks to make a debut at this event was Eric Kesselman's black discard deck. It contained Ensnaring Bridge and a heavy share of creature removal for control, and Cursed Scroll and The Rack for the game win. "This was a metagame deck," said Kesselman. "With so many people using Cursed Scroll, you couldn't help but punish them with The Rack." Three players used this deck in the tournament, and one of them placed in the Top 8.

When the dust settled, the Top 8 players entering the single-elimination rounds were using four white-weenie decks of different kinds, a monoblack discard, a prison variant, a Sligh deck, and a rogue-mono-green-land-destruction deck that stumbled into the Top 8 packing two Wild Growths and five Elves for speed.

The finals proved to be an exciting matchup as two Pro Tour winners faced off for the title. Jon Finkel, winner of the recent Pro Tour–New York, played an unorthodox Prison-style deck that locked creature decks with the Humility/Orim's Prayer combination. His opponent, Randy Buehler of Pro Tour–Chicago fame, was there to defend his title as champion of the Extended format.

Since both players' decks relied heavily on the Land Tax/Scroll Rack combination to draw additional cards, neither player could afford to have more land out than his opponent. This matchup was not a favorable one for Finkel as he couldn't afford to sit back with Buehler's weenie creatures on the offensive. He needed to draw well and play his artifact mana sources before taking too much damage.

In the end, Buehler was able to sweep Finkel 2–0, thanks to his Gorilla Shamans that destroyed a large portion of Finkel's artifact mana sources. "This card single-handedly won the match," Finkel commented.

Land Tax has since been banned for the Extended environment (see page seven for the current Banned and Restricted Lists).

Randy Buehler won a trophy, a Black Lotus card signed by Richard Garfield, a box of Italian Legends cards, and other merchandise. The other Top 8 Finishers were also well-awarded for their performance.

Randy Buehler, Champion

Randy Buehler, a twenty-eight-year-old Pittsburgh resident, has been on a roll since his win at Pro Tour–Chicago and shows no sign of slowing down. Buehler has taken a break from working on his Ph.D. and currently spends his time almost exclusively playing Magic. The investment has paid off with high finishes in Grand Prix–Atlanta and Antwerp. Having won the first-ever Extended format Pro Tour event, Buehler came to the Championship to defend his title. He did just that, plowing through the Swiss rounds with a 6–0–1 record and proceeding to defeat some of the toughest competition in the elimination rounds.

A member of team CMU, Buehler thoroughly playtested his deck against his teammates. "Mox Diamond/Land Tax is the most degenerate combo in the environment," he explained, "so I built my deck to abuse it."

"I would have played it too," admitted teammate Erik Lauer, "but we did not have enough Mox Diamonds between us to build another copy, so I went with Necro."

Like so many other top Extended decks these days, Buehler's "Tex-Mox" deck contained white-weenie creatures for the win. More important to the deck, however, was the Land Tax/Mox Diamond/Tithe/Scroll Rack combo, used to effectively draw three extra cards each turn. Unlike Finkel's deck, Buehler did not include Armageddon. Instead, he forced his opponents to play out their lands in order to deal with early creature onslaught. Perhaps the most unorthodox card in Buehler's deck was Gorilla Shaman, commonly referred to as "Mox Monkey." Buehler felt that others would be using Mox Diamond as well and decided to include the Shamans as a way to deal with them. "Even if my opponents did not use Mox Diamond, they were likely to use Cursed Scroll or another cheap artifact for a Monkey to eat," Buehler explained.

Buehler's innovative deck and excellent playing skills have secured him a tournament win and a spot in Magic history as the first-ever North American Extended Champion.

Jon Finkel, Finalist

The current leader in Pro Tour player point standings, Jon Finkel is thought by many Magic insiders to be the best professional player. Finkel's top achievements include his third-place showing at Pro Tour–Chicago and his win at Pro Tour–New York '98.

Always a fan of control decks, Finkel chose to play a Prison-like white deck with several off-color spells powered by Mox Diamonds and Undiscovered Paradise. His deck would stop the creature offense with an Orim's Prayer/Humility combo. Finkel left his opponents short of mana with his recursive Armageddons and would eventually win with his Kjeldoran Outpost. Like Buehler, Finkel clearly saw the power of the Land Tax/Scroll Rack combo and used it to gain card advantage.

Finkel blasted through the Swiss rounds with a 5–1–1 record, losing only to Irwin's monogreen land-destruction deck which he proceeded to beat in the semifinals.

Getting hooked up to the ARC

Sanctioned Tournaments for ARC System games

With the recent release of the C•23 and Xena: Warrior Princess trading card games, a new direction in gaming was launched—one that allows players not only to play deck against deck, but game versus game. Both of these games, and others on the way, are a part of the new ARC System game line. The DCI is supporting these new games with sanctioned tournament play. Can you harness the power of Xena to take down a Hercules: The Legendary Journeys deck? Now you can give it a shot, and you'll have a rating in the worldwide community of ARC System players to show just how well you throw down.

Of course, sanctioning is available for game-specific tournaments, such as Xena-only Constructed tournaments or C•23-only Limited events, but a new kind of event rolls out with the DCI's new Multigame Constructed format for ARC System. The DCI is using this new format to take advantage of the cross-gaming capabilities the ARC System line possesses. In the Multigame Constructed format, players may build decks using cards from one of the ARC System games allowed in sanctioned play. They can then compete against the rest of the field, butting heads against other ARC System game decks along the way.

Some of you who are already familiar with ARC System games know they're quick to learn. While they may lack the complexity of Magic, they're great to play with friends who are new to trading card games—and now you can whoop up on them, too, at your local card shop's tournaments.

Keeping it simple is the driving force behind ARC System games and the DCI's support of them. ARC System games were designed with the new trading card player in mind, so the DCI has designed its materials with this same mind-set. For example, the DCI has produced the one-page ARC System Condensed Floor Rules to serve as an easy introduction to sanctioned-tournament play.

As always, anyone can sanction a DCI ARC System tournament, so if you'd like to get one going, you can download a sanctioning application from the Wizards of the Coast website at <www.wizards.com> or request one from us at the address written below. If you have any questions, you can contact the DCI via email at <dci@wizards.com>, telephone at (425) 204-8032, or snail mail at:

Floor Rules

ARC SYSTEM CONDENSED FLOOR RULES
Effective June 1, 1998

Players and tournament organizers may use the following quick-reference rules to gain a basic understanding of how to participate in and run DCI-sanctioned ARC System events. Please refer to the ARC System DCI Standard Floor Rules for more information on the topics mentioned below.

Sanctioned Tournament Basics
The DCI sanctions the following ARC System games as of June 1, 1998:
C•23™
Xena: Warrior Princess™
Hercules: The Legendary Journeys™

- Expansions of approved ARC System games are allowed in sanctioned play on the day of the official product release.
- Tournament organizers and judges may not play in events they coordinate or oversee.
- Each sanctioned tournament must have a head judge on site to make official decisions.

Play Structure and Stages
- The outcome of a match must be determined by at least three games. (In a three-game match, the third game is bypassed if the same player won the first two games.)
- Players involved in a match may agree to an intentional draw before the first game begins.
- Players drawing two or fewer resources in their opening hands may declare a Mulligan, allowing them to reshuffle, recut, and redraw their cards once per game before play begins.

Floor Rules

General Rules of Tournament Play
- Cheating and unsporting conduct will not be tolerated.
- Players must keep their cards above the level of the playing surface at all times during a match.
- Card sleeves may be used, unless the head judge or tournament organizer says otherwise.
- The DCI recommends a 45-minute time limit for each round of matches.
- Players must be in their seats when the judge announces the beginning of a round; otherwise they will receive a loss for the first game of the match. For each additional 10 minutes players are late, they receive game losses until enough are accumulated for a match loss. Players who do not arrive in their seats by the end of the first round are ejected from the event.

Constructed Tournament Basics
- The DCI sanctions two Constructed formats feeding into one Constructed player rating: single-game and multiple-game tournaments.

1. Single-game Constructed tournaments allow decks consisting of cards from one ARC System game only.
2. Multiple-game Constructed tournaments allow decks from any approved ARC System game, but each player's deck can only contain cards from one ARC System game.

- Players must bring a prebuilt deck containing up to the maximum number of cards allowed by the tournament organizer. The DCI recommends this maximum be 40 cards.
- With the exception of resource cards, a player's deck may not contain more than four of any individual card.

Limited Tournament Basics
- The DCI sanctions one Limited format: Sealed Deck.
- Tournament organizers provide product to players for deck construction and play. The DCI recommends that organizers give players enough decks and/or boosters so that each player has between 60 and 100 cards.
- Tournament organizers set the deck-size requirement for a particular event before registration begins. The DCI recommends this deck size requirement be 40 cards.
- Tournament organizers may choose to provide resource cards for players to use during the tournament. Organizers choosing to provide resource cards must be able to supply all players the same amount of resource cards.

INTRODUCING DCI-SANCTIONED ENHANCED K-VALUE TOURNAMENTS!

The DCI players' organization now offers you a way to get more from organized play with enhanced K-value sanctioned Magic: The Gathering tournaments. The K-value is a constant numerical value that determines the effect each sanctioned tournament match has on a DCI member's official rating. Different tournaments have varying impacts on the official ratings—the higher the tournament's K-value, the greater the impact.

Enhanced K-value tournaments offer players and organizers even more tournament flexibility and choice. Tournament organizers will be able to choose the types of events that best suit their players' needs, and players will be able to participate in those events that best match their playing styles and competitive goals.

ANSWERS TO YOUR QUESTIONS ABOUT ENHANCED K-VALUE TOURNAMENTS

When does the enhanced K-value program go into effect?

September 1, 1998.

How will enhanced K-value affect tournaments and ratings?

The DCI uses the Elo system to rate its members' performances in sanctioned tournaments. In this system, the K-value is the maximum number of points available to each player per match in a sanctioned Magic tournament. Our rating formula determines exactly how many points from the K-value are added to or subtracted from each member's rating after each match, depending on whether the player wins or loses. DCI members receive a greater reward for defeating higher-rated members than for defeating lower-rated members, and vice versa.

For example, a regular sanctioned tournament might have a K-value of 16. This means that each DCI member can potentially gain or lose up to 16 points in each match. Enhanced K-value events offer you the opportunity to increase this number to 20, 24, 32, or even 48. The higher the K-value, the greater the potential reward for playing well.

Why are the official DCI ratings important?

If a player has a high DCI rating, he or she can earn an invitation to a variety of title events, including National Championships or the Magic: The Gathering Pro Tour. A DCI rating is the numerical description of a player's relative skill level. The difference between players' ratings helps predict the outcome of a contest between two players. The specific formula has been established according to statistical and probability theory. No rating, however, is a precise evaluation of a player's strength. Ratings are instead just averages of players' performances and should be viewed as approximations.

What are the requirements for enhanced K-value tournaments?

Refer to the Enhanced K-Value Chart to determine the requirements for enhanced K-value tournaments. A tournament must meet all the mandatory requirements, and at least one of the variable criteria in order to qualify for the enhanced K-value. If the event meets all the required criteria, we will calculate the match results using the appropriate K-value.

What do the criteria mean?

MANDATORY CRITERIA:
Your sanctioned tournament must meet all the appropriate mandatory criteria in order to qualify for an enhanced K-value.

Certified Judge: Sanctioned tournaments adjudicated by a DCI-certified head judge will be eligible for an enhanced K-value. The higher the certified judge level, the higher the potential classification.

Deck Checks: The DCI recommends that judges perform random deck and sideboard checks each round for roughly 5 percent of the total participants. Organizers who institute this practice are eligible for an enhanced K-value.

Decklists: To qualify for enhanced classification, the tournament staff must collect complete decklists prior to the start of the first round of play for both Limited and Constructed events. (They must also collect a new list each time a player is issued a new deck.) This includes deck checklists.

Sealed Deck Swap (Sealed Deck tournaments only): To ensure fairness, the DCI recommends that the contents of sealed product be registered by a person other than the player using the deck, prior to deck construction. Sanctioned tournaments that follow this policy are eligible for enhanced classification and K-value.

Rules Application: To indicate the severity and consistency of penalties issued to players who violate sections of the DCI Standard Floor Rules, the DCI has created a simple rules application guide. The scale ranges from "very lenient" enforcement of penalties (1) to "very strict" enforcement (5). The DCI will provide information to its certified judges on implementing this criterion at sanctioned tournaments.

DCI Floor Rules Application

1 Very Lenient
2 Lenient
3 Normal
4 Strict
5 Very Strict

Please note that a sanctioned tournament must satisfy only one of the following three criteria in order to qualify for enhanced K-value. The DCI will use the higher of the three values to classify any tournament that meets more than one variable criteria, provided a minimum of eight players participate in the event, and provided all other mandatory criteria are met.

Prize Value: A tournament organizer may obtain the desired tournament classification by offering a minimum cash (or its equivalent value) prize at the tournament, provided he or she also satisfies all the mandatory criteria for the desired classification.

Tournament Size: Certain attendance levels can satisfy the variable criteria. This option is convenient for organizers who can rely on consistent participation numbers. If an organizer chooses this option but the event in question fails to attract the requisite number of players, the DCI will grant the highest classification possible based on the actual attendance.

Invitation Status: To satisfy this criterion, a sanctioned tournament must be organized and run as an invitational event. All participants in the tournament must be DCI members whose official ratings meet the listed minimum rating requirement.

I still have some questions. Who should I contact?

Please contact the DCI players' organization to get quick answers to all your questions. You can reach us by phone at (425) 204-8032 or by email at <dci@wizards.com>.

ARENA LEAGUE

For a Magic-playing experience designed less for cutthroat tournament play and more for the fun of the game, the Arena experience is ideal.

Each season the Arena league uses a new format to keep game play exciting. Currently the Arena league is featuring the Rath Cycle preconstructed decks, which were prereleased to Arena players before they were available to anyone else. These decks introduce new themes while reinventing some old favorites. The mono-blue "Dominator" deck wins with control, fliers, and lots of tricks. "White Heat" combines the best of white weenie with red burn, resulting in a highly versatile deck. Endless card drawing and discarding opportunities abound in the "Widowmaker" deck. "Groundbreaker" wreaks havoc on your opponent's lands until you set up the final blow.

For the last half of the Radiant Season, the Arena league will allow players to use Standard Constructed decks. Opening up the format for the season allows players to improve their deckbuilding skills as well as practice for Constructed tournaments. The Arena league is the perfect place to test out new deck ideas in a fun environment.

What's in store for upcoming seasons?

For Summer Season fun, the Arena league combines the new Unglued supplement with the Extended format. Each player's deck must contain at least sixteen Unglued cards.

Harvest Season brings more prereleased preconstructed decks when the Urza's Saga expansion hits the scene. Try out your Rath Cycle preconstructed decks against the new Urza's Saga decks and see who emerges victorious! Will Gerrard teach Mishra a valuable lesson? Or will the Brothers crush Sisay and her crew?

And for those of you who love group games, during the Autumn Season Arena will introduce the new multi-player variants, as well as the third series of Vanguard cards.

You can play in the Arena league at any participating store and at conventions like Origins and GEN CON.

Arena at GEN CON:

For a good time before the World Championships, the Arena league will be experimenting with the new Unglued supplement when it premieres at GEN CON.

Each person who signs up for the Arena league will receive two Unglued boosters to add to their Extended decks. Prizes will be awarded after every match. Be among the first to play with Unglued!

In addition to providing a fun environment for the Magic trading card game, the Arena league also gives its players all kinds of cool stuff. Three times a year Arena members get new preconstructed decks before anyone else. Arena encourages players to use new supplements like Unglued, which can't be played in tournaments, in league play. And don't forget the Vanguard cards, which are only available through Arena league retailers. Have some fun with the Arena league, and remember: it's just a game.

Be the Mightiest MechWarrior in all the World

Illustration by Dana Knutson

Ready for something new? A game of complete military domination? A game in which anything less than complete annihilation of your enemy is unacceptable? Then perhaps it's time you gave the BattleTech TCG a try. Wizards of the Coast and the DCI players' organization have been supporting the BattleTech TCG through sanctioned tournament play for just over a year and are seeing continued success on all fronts.

The DCI has put a lot of time and effort into the 1998 BattleTech World Championships, modeling much of the organization and format on the Magic Pro Tour. Nearly fifty qualifier tournaments will be held worldwide with over $10,000 in cash travel awards on the line. Players qualifying for the World Championships will be eligible to compete for over $15,000 in cash and prizes at the World Championships, held at the GEN CON Game Fair in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, August 8–9. This is a drastic change from last year's open tournament at Origins in Columbus, Ohio. The DCI felt it was time to take the BattleTech TCG to a new level and decided the way to do it was to up the stakes for the World Championships. In addition to the advertised cash and prize pool, every year the DCI will have the likeness of the World Champion painted on a card in an upcoming expansion. Last year's World Champion, Peter Sundholm, appeared in the Arsenal expansion as "MechWarrior Peter." In addition to using his likeness, the R&D team created a card that reflected the deck he played at the Worlds as well.

This year the DCI expects to see players from the U.S., Canada, Singapore, Portugal, Australia, France, Belgium, the Netherlands, and the U.K. at the World Championships. This is a great increase in international attendance over last year, when the only countries represented were the U.S. and Canada. The DCI is excited to see this increase in attendance and expects to see even more countries represented next year.

BattleTech DCI membership and tournament sanctioning have increased steadily over the past year. Since the beginning of 1998, the BattleTech DCI has already sanctioned over eight hundred tournaments in the U.S. and abroad, nearly doubling the total number of sanctioned tournaments for 1997. During the twelve months since the BattleTech DCI rolled out, we have seen an average of 125 new members per month. The DCI adds an average of six new organizers per month to the ranks already sanctioning BattleTech tournaments.

The international scene for BattleTech tournaments continues to grow as well. Within the last six months alone, the DCI has answered questions regarding BattleTech tournaments in Sweden, Finland, New Zealand, Korea, Malaysia, and several others. We fully expect to sanction tournaments in those countries in the near future.

Other exciting developments over the last year include appearances of websites devoted to the BattleTech TCG. These sites provide deck discussion, strategy, and general talk about the BattleTech game. The most prolific of these sites is Alphastrike.com. Maintained by Daniel Stahl, a self-sworn devotee of the BattleTech TCG from Southern California, Alphastrike.com has proven to be a valuable resource to BattleTech players, tournament coordinators, and the DCI.

The Sideboard will continue to feature a BattleTech article in every issue. In the future these articles will consist more of deckbuilding strategies and tournament-play information. BattleTech players are invited to submit any deck or play strategies to:
